Pet products may harm your pets and humans as well.

Some of us remember years ago, when the topical flea & tick treatments came out. What a life saving miracle for us and our pets, we thought. So easy; put it on and off were good to go. If you lived in a flea infested area, no more worries about these pesky bugs and best of all our pet's were safe and our homes and yard free of itchy bugs.

Boy, were we wrong. Thank goodness it has been discovered they are not all that safe and many of the ingredients have been taken off the market, but many still remain in these products. You'd think with so many being sold they'd be safe. Sadly this is not true. As the harmful effects of these products come to light for many pet owners, more are finding natural ways to prevent their pets from the side effects by making their own flea treatment's or buying the organic ones.

Great Life has a super product called Tombstone; I use this often for my guys. It has all the natural oil's I use when I make my own flea treatment. I can order

Tombstone if you've been a user of it and would like to have it on hand for summer; It sells for $15.00

A company called Wally's has developed a product with peppermint, cloves and cedar oil, vit e, with natural preservatives . One thing you can be assured of, if I won't use it on my dog's, I won't sell it to you for your pet's.

Becoming your dog's leader doesn't have to be cruel, harsh or mean. In this class you will learn along with your dog how to become the family member in charge of your furry friend using positive training and behavior modification. Dog's do not want to be in charge. They want to have a strong leader as their owner to take the stress off of them. It's a huge responsibility for a dog to be in charge of himself and everyone else in the family. Do him a huge favor and learn how to take that role away and give yourself the leadership skills you need.
